Honors Residential College at Hume Hall
Overview

The Honors Residential College at Hume Hall is a living learning community built on the former site of Hume Hall, which opened in 1958 and was razed in the Fall of 2000. Designed as a residentially-based academic community, UF’s new facility opened in 2002 and integrates the housing needs of Honors residents with facilities, staff, and programs in support of the Honors Program.

The Honors Program offers opportunities to students to enroll in small, challenging classes with the best faculty at the university. They sponsor study abroad programs designed to enhance student understanding of different cultures. Honors students also benefit from undergraduate research opportunities and unique internship programs.

Program Goals

- Promote involvement with the campus community through residence hall activities, student organizations, and interaction with faculty, staff, and other students.
- Assist incoming honors students in making a smooth transition to the University community.
- Provide additional opportunities for informal out-of-class interactions between honors students and faculty.
- Provide opportunities to participate in activities that enhance the Undergraduate Experience.
  - Participate in leadership opportunities.
  - Involvement in community service.
  - Study abroad.
  - Conduct research.
  - Complete an internship

Academic Resources

- Student Honors Organization (SHO): The SHO Office is located in the Hume Commons. SHO hosts regular meetings, programs, events, and leadership opportunities for Honors students. Visit SHO on the web for more information.

- Faculty-in-Residence: The Hume Area is home to a faculty-in-residence. This faculty member lives in the halls and serve as academic advisor and mentors to residents. For more information about this program, click here.

- Faculty Mentors: Each “house” in Hume has a faculty mentor who acts as a resource and contact for residents on the floor. From a variety of disciplines, these mentors provide outreach, programs, and support for the students in their “house”.

- Classroom space: Hume Commons offers a multimedia classroom for Honors classes and group study.

- Study space: Hume Commons offers a variety of comfortable study spaces both on the floors and in the common area.

- Other programs presented over the year include study buddies, Friday Salon Speakers, social events, professional school planning, and exam review sessions.
How Do I Participate?
Students are invited to join the program based on their University of Florida Admissions application by the honors program. Visit www.honors.ufl.edu for more information about the Honors Program.
